Composer Notes

The text for “Abide, O Spirit of Life” is adapted by the catechist and author Bill Huebsch from a prayer attributed to St. Isidore of Seville. According to Huebsch, the prayer was used for church councils in Seville (7th century), and before each session of Vatican I (1869–70) and each meeting of Vatican II.

Presented here in a setting designed for confirmation, the arrangement includes band, sax, and vocal improvisation, all of which make this contemporary setting of a 1,400-year-old prayer come very much alive today—for youth and for the young of heart! As with all of the music found in the collection Endless Is Your Love, simpler resources can work as well.

The dotted rhythm is the key to keeping the song together and fresh. [This is really a rock song in the style of Tom Petty!] Use it as a song for dismissal at a youth mass or any situation needing an upbeat “song of the Spirit” for the assembly and a band.
