Christ of Ages

During the final Sundays of the Liturgical Year, the Scripture readings speak of the end times and the coming of Christ, when the kingdom of God will arrive in its fullness. The text of this piece, addressed to the risen Lord, is a summoning of Christ to come in glory and bring the reign of God. The verses echo the prophecies of peace and gladness found in the Book of Isaiah.

The piece has a march-like tempo and meter that gives it a majestic, triumphant mood that fits with its theme. Throughout the keyboard accompaniment, the recurring triplet figure augments this majestic feel, adding a rhythm much like a snare drum in a marching band. The vocal parts are for SAB choir, but these full harmonies are not necessary throughout. Again, a variation of color and timbre keeps the piece interesting and alive. Having the men sing a verse alone, then the women in SA, followed by an SAB verse helps ensure this variation and interest.

During the final Sundays of the Church Year, this hymn can easily find a place as either a gathering or closing piece. Alternatively, it could be used during Advent as the verses connect so easily with the promises of fulfillment found in the readings from the Book of Isaiah.
